Mrs. Margaret Glover, Appomattox County librarian, on the left, accepts the George H. Collins Collection of items and playbills pertaining to "The Five-String Banjo" and its inventor, Joel Walker (Joe) Sweeney, from Calvin H.Robinson, on the right, who made the presentation on behalf of Mrs. Collins.

Valuable Collection Given To County Library

The original Joe Sweeney Banjo is in the Los Angeles County Museum in California, but the Appomattox County Library now has a valuable collection of items and playbills pertaining to the five - string banjo and its inventor, Joe Sweeney of Appomattox County, from the collection of the late George H. Collins which was donated to the local library and was presented on behalf of Mrs. Collins by Calvin H. Robinson, local historian.

Included in this collection is the custom made personal banjo of Fred Van Epps of New Jersey. Van Epps was said to be the greatest banjo performer since Joe Sweeney. Pictures and articles on Van Epps are included in the collection, also.

The personal banjo of the late Colonel George Harold Collins, a great banjo player in his own right, was also included in the collection.

Collins, a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, became an Army Engineer of distinguished accomp lishment. Upon his retirement he resided in San Antonio, Texas and in St. Petersburg, Fla., where he died in 1970. For many years he was National Secretary of the Fraternity of Five-String Banjo Players of America and wrote many articles for their nationally - circulated magazine.

Collins spent many months in Appomattox, Richmond and other places in Virginia, in New York, in Washington, in Boston and other places gathering material for his book: SWEENEY OF APPOMATTOX.

While in Appomattox, Mr. and Mrs. Collins became close friends of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin H. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Burke and many others. Upon the death of Colonel Collins, Mrs. Collins declined offers to sell this collection at a fine

Council Approves Retirement Program For Town Employees

Council members voted to accept a proposed Virginia Retirement Program for town employees at their regular meeting on Monday night.

Coverage will be on six of the eight town employees who have indicated that they want to participate in the retirement program and all prior service will be credited to the employee. The cost to the Town of Appomattox will be $1089.00 per year for the total employees participating in this plan with each employee paying their share into the plan.

It was reported to council members that the water line along Patricia Ann Lane is now 100% complete but town forces still have to make street and service connections.

A motion was made to permit no industrial waste to be discharged to the Appomattox sewer system if such industrial waste is not compatable with the biological system if it is of a higher concentration in terms of BOD than raw domestic sewage unless specifically authorized by the Town Council of Appomattox. The motion carried.

Bleechers for the Town Ball Park have arrived and have been installed.

W. S. Slagle reported to council members that Virginia Avenue extended has been cleared in order to serve Thomasville Furniture Industries with water and sewer lines. By using town forces to do this job, the approximate cost of $3000.00 was saved by the town.

Slagle, the town manager, advised council that Mr. Ted Gray, president of Gray Broadcasting Enterprises of Altavista, Virginia had expressed a desire to purchase from the Town of Appomattox a lot adjacent to the lagoon to erect a radio antenna on. No action was taken on this matter pending further investigation.

In other business, council voted to deny a request from the Board of Supervisors asking that the town pay a portion of the salary for the dog warden during the quarantine period.

Much interest has been shown concerning the redevelopment of downtown Appomattox. No action could be taken at

County Adopts Solid Waste Ordinance

Meeting last week to make plans for the introduction of Art to the secondary curriculum in Appomattox were, from left to right, Mrs. Shirlee C. Loomer, Assistant Supervisor for Art Education, State Department of Education; Mrs. Jean Hesson, General Supervisor; L. A. Beamon, Principal Appomattox Intermediate School; and Mrs. Pat Torrence, Assistant Principal.

Art Will Be Included In Secondary Education

The introduction of Art to the secondary curriculum will be made in September when classes are initiated at the Appomattox Intermediate School. Mrs. Shirlee C. Loomer, Assistant Supervisor for Art Education, State Department of Education, has met with the administrative staff at the school for preliminary planning. She is assisting in setting up the curriculum, preparing the list of necessary materials, and establishing procedures for correlating Art with the other areas of the academic program. She will return during the summer to work with the art teacher in setting up her objectives and activities.

Mrs. Loomer has stated that the philosophy of an art program should reflect art as a means of communication. Emphasis should be on the creative process with deemphasis on the final product. The art curricular will concentrate on four areas. They are: providing experiences with media; an introduction to art history; ability of the student to form evaluation criteria of art and [illegible] the students' visual perception through the development of concepts.

Collection System Cost $50,000 Plus

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Appomattox County on Friday, June 8, 1973 the Solid Waste Ordinance was adopted, and by laws to be published in the Times-Virginian in this issue and in the issue of June 28th.

All Residents of Appomattox County, according to W. S. Slagle, Town Manager and Administrative Assistant for the new Sanitary Landfill, including those residing within the Corporate limits of the Towns of Appomattox and Pamplin are urged to read all provisions of the Appomattox County Solid Waste Ordinance and be thoroughly familiar with it.

Basically the Towns of Appomattox and Pamplin will continue to collect garbage just as they have in the past. However, instead of transporting this garbage to the old dumps (the old dumps will be closed) it will be transported to the new Appomattox County Landfill after July 1, 1973 — the deadline as established by law. Town residents and commercial establishments will not participate in the container collection program since this is intended for the exclusive use of rural Appomattox County residents.

All commercial establishments will have the right to dispose of their own solid waste at no cost at the new landfill. All residents (both town and county) will also have the right to transport items which cannot
